Quality First

Insulation

Diathermy instruments are tested for integrity of diathermy insulation.

Accuracy

We ensure all moving parts fit easily together, that jaws are square, parallel and mate. Additionally, all serrations must mesh accurately.

Tungsten Carbide inserts

All tungsten carbide inserts are inspected under the microscope where we ensure all soldering is completed without any fractures or blow holes.

Under the Microscope

We use a microscope to inspect the jaws for all types of instruments. Magnification allows us to identify even the most minor imperfections.

Workmanship

We thoroughly control the workmanship of the instruments. We ensure that all screw joints & Rivets are immovable, that there are no movements or crevices in joints.

Reliability

In accordance with BS5194 and ISO 13402 we carry out corrosion resistance testing. This ensures our instruments are resistant to corrosion during re-processing.

Inspections for Scissors, Forceps and Needle Holders

Elasticity

Artery forceps and needle holders are tested for elasticity in accordance with BS5194-2.

Functionality

We complete a clamp test for all needle holders as per BS5194-2 in order to ensure optimal functionality.

Sharpness

A cutting test is carried out to ensure all scissors are fit for purpose.

Material Composition

We complete a hardness test using the Rockwell hardness test method. This test confirms the instruments are the correct hardness for their intended purpose as specified within BS 5194.

We ensure that the hardness between mating surfaces never differs more than 4 units on the Rockwell scale. Mating surfaces need to be compatible in order to prevent damage.

Consistency in Processes

The size and shape of finished instruments are checked against the original drawing or master sample to ensure our processes remain consistent.

A Perfect Finish

We ensure the surface finish conforms to the specific requirements of each instrument and conforms to BS5194

Attention to Detail

We ensure that the surface condition of the instruments are free from pores, crevices and grinding marks. Before dispatch we check that all polishing material is removed.

Why Choose STERIS?

We know you have plenty of choice when it comes to selecting your surgical instrument provider, let us tell you why we believe STERIS can provide your organisation with highly reliable and safe products.

Quality First

We combine our quality management system with our corporate culture to create an environment that favours and promotes quality standards set out for our industry. This enables us to ensure that the safety of our surgical instruments is set at the heart of all of our operational efforts.

At STERIS Instrument Management Services, are certified to ISO 13485. We know that the services and products we supply are crucial to patient safety and therefore we never stop seeking excellence in quality through continuous improvement initiatives throughout our business activities.

This ensures that all instruments comply to the highest standards in terms of reliability and materials. All stainless steels used in our manufacturing meet the requirements set out in BS EN ISO 7153-1 as appropriate to the instrument and our inspection protocols ensures that the specifications within the appropriate parts of BS 5194 are met.

Our commitment to compliance and improvements is integral to our business and the sector in which we operate.

Semi-Detachable Kerrison Rongeurs

The Semi-Detachable Kerrison rongeurs were designed with both the patient and surgeon in mind. The durable take-apart design enables the instrument to be completely cleaned, reducing the risk of bioburden buildup without sacrificing functionality.

Disassembly Instructions

1. Gently squeeze the handle
2. Press the catch downwards
3. Lift the top slide rail upwards

Please refer to Instructions for Use for more information.

The instrument is handcrafted from forge to finish, including a consistent cutting edge. Ejector bar and grooveless rails help prevent bone and soft tissue from sticking to the cutting edge. The Semi-Detachable Kerrison rongeurs can be disassembled for cleaning, allowing visualisation of the entire instrument.
